CINEMATIC SISTERS

Hello fellow movie fans,

Welcome to the first issue of Cinematic Sisters, an occasional magazine about classic Hollywood from a feminist perspective.

I'm delighted to bring you this movie
nights in edition packed full of ideas,
fun printable as well as informative
tidbits and guides.

This may be a one-off or a semi-regular, once or twice a year, thing.
Right now, I'm not sure but either way,
I'm delighted you're here with me.

with love, Alexa Joy

6 Steps To The Perfect Movie Night In

by Alexa Joy

Want to elevate your Friday film from a quick scroll through Netflix and grabbing whatever's in the fridge to a relaxing treat you can revel in?

You're in the right place, my friend, because that's exactly what Silver Screen Sass does best.

Get ready to become the director of your own movie night in as we dive in to my 6 step guide to creating the perfect movie night in.

STEP 1 - PICK YOUR MOVIE

This sets the tone for your night. If you're having a solo film night, what do you fancy? How do you feel? Are you in the mood for a good laugh, fancy hiding behind a pillow or looking for a cathartic cry?

Then opt for a Screwball comedy like 'Bringing Up Baby', a creepy classic like 'Nosferatu', or weepy like 'Stella Dallas'.

STEP 2 - SET THE SCENE

Next we need to get comfy. Dig out your coziest blanket (or blankets if this is a family and friends night), grab some soft pillows and arrange the seating for maximum viewing comfort.

If possible, use a projector for that big-screen effect, or enhance your TV setup with surround sound to create the most cinematic experience possible.

Don't forget to turn off your phone so you can stay fully immersed.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, COMFORT-ACTION!

6 STEPS TO THE PERFECT MOVIE NIGHT IN CONTD.

STEP 3 - THE SNACKS

And of course no movie night is complete without snacks. Popcorn is the most iconic snack but why not mix it up with gourmet chocolates or old school candies. You could even add in some nachos, hot dogs or, if you're feeling super fancy, a board with charcuterie or cheese.

STEP 4 - PREPARE THE DRINKS

As for something to drink, as I write this there's snow falling outside so my mind has flown straight to a spicy hot chocolate with some fluffy whipped cream and marshmallows.

But for warmer months/climes, how about a homemade milkshake? And for the super fancy option there's always some Prosecco or a cute mocktail.

If you're stuck for ideas there's always the recipe in my little preview of the Film Club on page 24.

STEP 5 - ADD IN SOME EXTRAS

If you're hosting a movie night for friends and family, why not include pre- or post-movie activities such as movie trivia game, see page 15 for a ready made quiz.

Dressing up, with a theme to match the movie (such as gangster) or Oscar Glitz, can make the night extra special.

STEP 6 - ENJOY THE MOVIE

Finally, it's time to dim the lights, fluff up your cushions and press play.

Whether you're snuggled up on your own or sharing the experience with friends, a film night in is the perfect way to escape from the stresses of the day by immersing yourself in the magic of the movies. Wherever genre you've chosen, key is to relax and savour the moment — it might just become a new tradition.

DID YOU KNOW?

THREE SURPRISING STORIES FROM OLD HOLLYWOOD

Florence Lawrence, achieved a lot of firsts. She initially found such film fame that she was nicknamed after the studio she worked for, being called The Biograph Girl, before becoming the first movie star to be named. But, in February 1910 she became the subject of the first star publicity stunt.

An advert was placed by Frank Talbot, manager of The Gem Theatre in St Louis, announcing that Miss Lawrence had not died in a street car accident, thus creating rumours that she had. Her boss, Carl Laemmle, joined in charade by issuing a statement saying she was very much alive and working. Eventually, she had to travel to St Louis herself to dispel rumours!

*At least 100 people were injured viewing
Valentino's body*

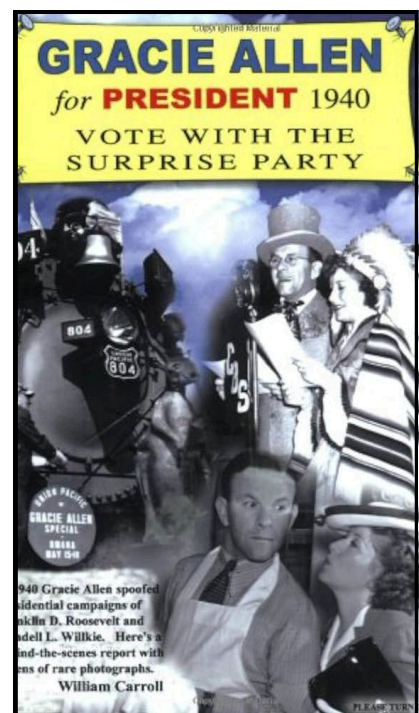

As the world was deep into war and a presidential battle raged in the USA, Gracie Allen, one half of the comedy duo Burns and Allen, made an announcement. She was going to run for president. While it may have begun as a neat publicity stunt, it soon blew up. She formed 'The Surprise Party' and toured the country, in a campaign trail parody, whipping up support through their radio show. Her campaign crossed over into other shows, won Harvard's student body vote and crowds of 100,000 people turned out to hear her speak.

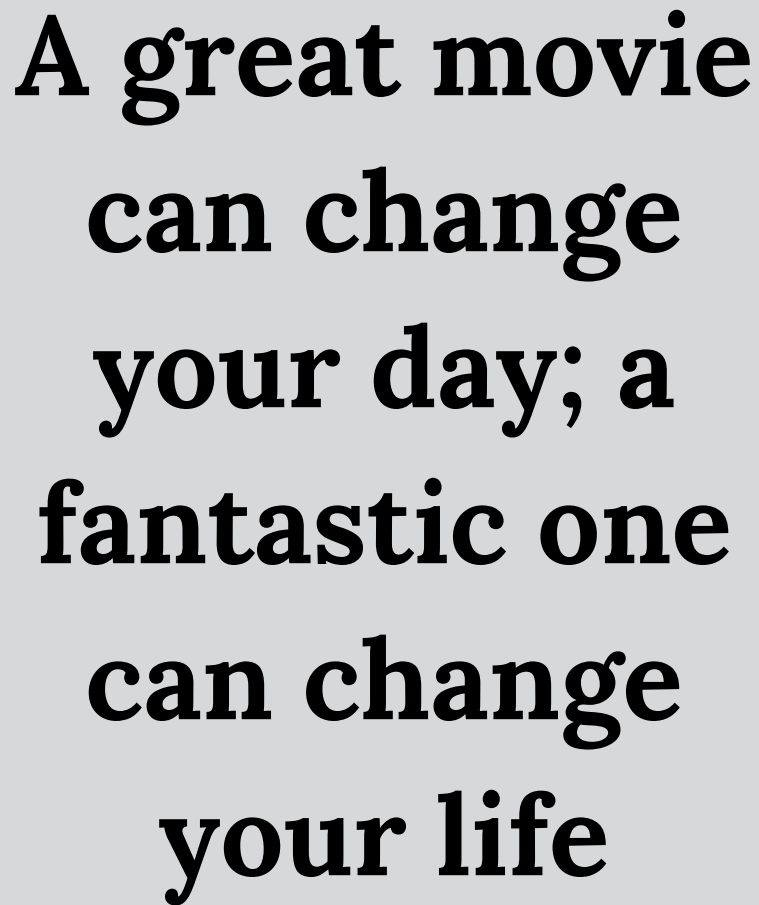

She withdrew from the race before the election and wrote a book called 'How to Become President'.

In August 1926, movie mega-star and international sex-symbol Rudolph Valentino died. What followed was chaos.

- * One of his doctors immediately had a heart attack.
- * A row of policeman were crushed, by stampeding mourners, into the funeral parlour's window. It broke.
- * At least 100 other mourners were injured on day one of viewing his body.
- * Girlfirend Pola Negri, fainted after praying at his coffin for 15 minutes.
- * She fainted again at the funeral, saying no one could understand the depths of her grief. A few months later she married a prince.
- * At least 2 people killed themselves citing his death as the reason.
- * His brother underwent seven operations so he could look like Rudi and become a star. It didn't work.

WOMEN IN FILM HISTORY

TIMELINE

HAVE A LOOK BELOW FOR ANY KEY DATES AND INFORMATION REGARDING THIS PROJECT OR WORKSHOP.

Alice Guy

MUST WATCH: 'La Fée aux Choux' aka 'The Cabbage Fairy' (1896)

Born in France in 1873, Guy was the first female director and one of the earliest filmmakers in history. With her visionary storytelling and innovative techniques, Alice invented the narrative film. She directed over 1000 films, exploring diverse genres from comedy to drama. Alice's contributions to the industry extended beyond directing: she was a script writer, producer, and even founded her own production company but she was literally written out of history for decades. As her work is rediscovered, her legacy is an empowering inspiration to women in the film industry today.

Dorothy Arzner

MUST WATCH: 'Dance, Girl, Dance' (1940)

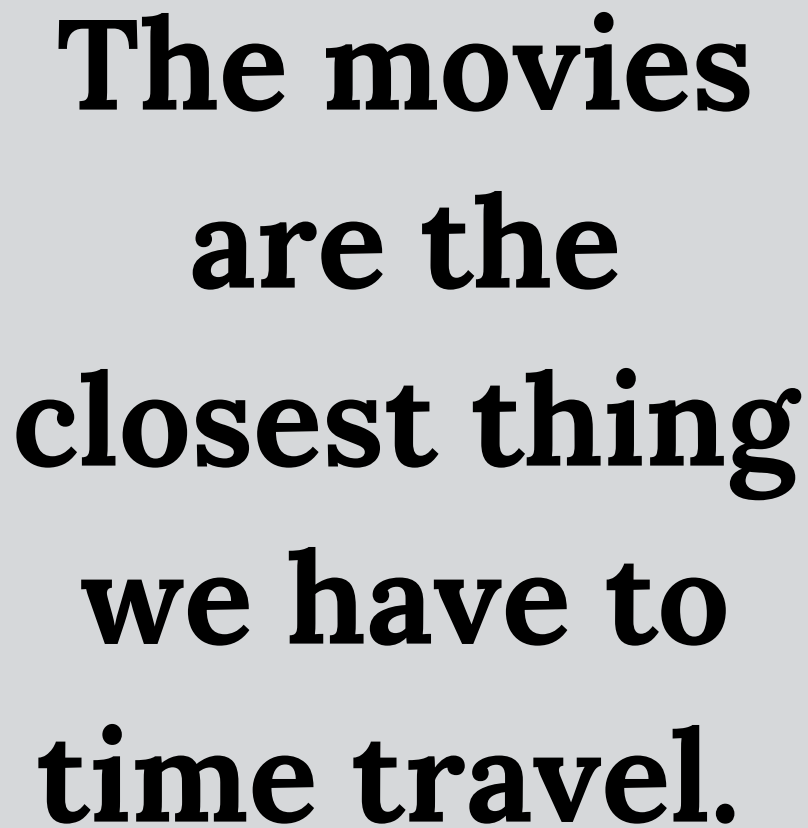

Born in 1897, in San Francisco, Arzner broke barriers in the male-dominated film industry and became the first woman to direct a sound film. With her iconic, stylish fedora and cigarette holder, she brought a unique vision to Hollywood. Arzner directed over 20 films in a career spanning the 1920s to the 1940s. Her works explored themes of female empowerment and challenged gender norms. Known for her sharp wit and strong personality, Arzner left an indelible mark on cinema history as a visionary director who paved the way for future generations of women in film.

Silver Screen Sass

THE BASICS

Dir: Billy Wilder

Released: 1959

Cast: Marilyn Monroe, Tony Curtis,
Jack Lemmon, Joe E. Brown

Genre: Comedy, Romance

THE SYNOPSIS

When two musicians (Lemmon and Curtis) witness a mob hit, they hide in an all-female band.

Complications set in when one is pursued by old playboy (Brown) and one falls for Sugar (Monroe).

THE WHY

Probably the most famous of Marilyn Monroe's films, it's still considered one of the finest films ever made. As well as her iconic performance, it has sharp comedy and slick action, it scrutinises the male gaze, addresses misogyny, hints at homosexuality and challenged the censors at every turn. What's not to love?

THE SNACKS

Snack: Fluffy Cupcakes

Drink: Manhattan Cocktail

Of course the snack has to be as sweet as Sugar Kane and the drink needs to be classic!

THE FACTS

It's widely believed Monroe had difficulty with her lines during filming: the scene where she says "It's me, Sugar" took 47 takes to get right and the one where she's rummaging for a bottle took 59 but according to the documentary 'Reframed' she deliberately ruined the takes because she knew she could do better.

Monroe's contract stated her films should be shot in colour, Wilder convinced her to approve black and white.

The use of maracas in a scene near the end was added in later to allow a pause in the dialogue for the audience to laugh!

The film was banned in Kansas because the cross-dressing was deemed "too disturbing"!
